Photo 1: Northwest elevation, E. V. Douglas House, looking southeast from Chestnut Hill Avenue. Photographer: Emily T. Cooperman

Photo 2: Northwest and northeast elevations, E. V. Douglas House, looking south from Chestnut Hill Avenue. Photo: E. Cooperman.
Photo 3: Southwest elevation and southeast elevations, E. V. Douglas House, looking north from Shawnee Street. Photographer: E. Cooperman
Photo 4: Northwest elevation, E. V. Douglas House, looking south from Chestnut Hill Avenue.
Photographer: E. Cooperman
Photo 5: Southwest elevation, E. V. Douglas House, looking northeast from Shawnee Street.
Photographer: E. Cooperman

Photo 6: Southeast elevation, E. V. Douglas House, looking northwest from rear alley.
Photo: E. Cooperman.
Photo 7: Shawnee Street sidewalk, E. V. Douglas House, looking southeast. Photo: E. Cooperman.
Photo 8: Driveway entrance on Chestnut Hill Avenue, E. V. Douglas House, looking northeast. Photo: E. Cooperman.
Figure 1: Plot plan of 30 West Chestnut Hill Avenue, Philadelphia, Pa.
Figure 2: Douglas House, ca. 1905, Collection the Chestnut Hill Historical Society

Figure 3: Detail, Plate 19, Geo. W. and Walter S. Bromley, Atlas of the City of Philadelphia, Volume 7, 22nd Ward (Philadelphia, 1889), courtesy the Chestnut Hill Historical Society. Douglas House is circled in red.
Figure 4: Scott-Wanamaker House, 2032 Walnut Street, designed by T. P. Chandler, 1883. Source: Moses King, Philadelphia and Notable Philadelphians.

Figure 5: Compton, Chestnut Hill, designed by T. P. Chandler, 1887-88, no longer extant. Source: Moses King, Philadelphia and Notable Philadelphians.
Figure 6: George Dunn House, designed by T. P. Chandler, 1888. Photographer: E Cooperman